Today is the Fourth Sunday of Easter and recall that during Easter season our first reading is from Acts of the Apostles. Two remarkable things occur in this reading. First is the amazing boldness of Peter who not long ago was unwilling to be identified with Jesus. Now he sets all his fears aside and boldly declares his faith and wins three thousand souls for Christ. These events occur on Pentecost when the Spirit has come upon them. Peter has survived a crisis and finds unexpected strength with which to deal with new challenges. Second is the response of the Jewish audience. Immediately taken by Peter's words, they seek his advice. Peter tells them what's needed: "repent," "be baptized," "receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." And finally he implores them to set themselves apart from the "corrupt generation."

Continuing with the first Letter of Peter, we hear him calling us to follow the shepherd and reminds us that he walked a painful road. His example for us was one of suffering innocence. He endured cruel suffering which he did nothing to merit. And yet, Peter reminds us, he returned no insults when insulted and no threats when he was forced to suffer. In the second paragraph today, what was said of Isaiah's Suffering Servant is now applied to Jesus. The Suffering Servant is the healing Savior who brings all stray sheep back to the fold.

In our gospel we hear a theologically developed text from John in which Jesus contrasts himself with false shepherds; that is, the Pharisees who have just expelled from the temple the man born blind whom Jesus cured. He speaks harshly of them but warmly of the true shepherd. In ancient Palestine, shepherds allowed flocks to comingle and form one communal sheepfold. To gather his own flock, a shepherd called his sheep. Only his sheep recognized his voice and followed him. Jesus compares this relationship to his intimate bond with his disciples and contrasts it with the cruelty of the thief and robber who care nothing for the sheep. And not only is he the shepherd, he is also the gate to the sheepfold through which every would-be shepherd must pass. Those who enter he names authentic shepherds who come in and go out and lead their sheep to green pasture. And finally he warns the Pharisees about arrogant self-deception and his followers about the danger of self-serving leaders.

Celebrant of our Saturday evening Mass at St. Patrick's this weekend is Father Jason Glover of Gannon University and celebrant of the 8 and 10:30 AM Sunday Masses at St. Patrick's and the 9 AM Mass at St. Hedwig's is Monsignor Richard Sullivan.

We're having some sidewalks replaced at St. Patrick's which were damaged by the heavy machinery which was used to point the exterior of the church. We're also doing some additional work in the St. Patrick Food Pantry by removing a long unused kitchen and turning it into a badly needed storage area. You might be interested to know that the area occupied by the Food Pantry was, in the early days of the church, an apartment where the custodian and his family lived. As a matter of fact, two babies were born in that apartment while they lived there which might make St. Patrick's the only church in the diocese where a baby was born!

This is usually the time of year when new priests are ordained for our diocese. For example, I was ordained on May 7, 1970 and there were 13 of us in my ordination class. Unfortunately, we have no one to be ordained this year and only one priest to be ordained next year. The shortage is becoming more and more acute by the day. A group of Brazilian bishops met recently with Pope Francis and one of them told the pope that his diocese has 700,000 Catholics and only 24 priests. He said he has over 300 deacons but they can't celebrate the Eucharist. The pope responded by saying that perhaps this discipline of celibacy has to change, but he added that the consensus for it has to come from the bishops conferences around the world; in other words from the local level of the church rather than from the top.

While a change in priestly celibacy might not completely overcome the shortage of priests, it would certainly help. I also think we would have a much healthier priesthood if we had married clergy. I don't think the average Catholic in the pew would have any problem if such a change were to come about. The bishops at the Second Vatican Council in the 1960s wanted to discuss this issue, but Pope Paul VI forbid them to do so.

I'm grateful to a group of 4 St. Patrick parishioners who have volunteered to build a stage for our Irish Festival. Renting one would cost $750 each year; this way we make a one time investment and have it. They are building a 16' x 20' stage in 4 sections so that we can take it apart.

Next agenda item is to get Penelec in and determine what kind of electricity we need to add for the event. We are going to meet this week with the food vendors and make sure everything is on mark with them. While Calamari's is going to prepare our food, they are in need of additional people to work in the kitchen. I'm grateful that the Tap House, Sullivan's and Scully's have all jumped in and are giving two full time employees for Friday evening and Saturday to help.

The second collection today is the annual Good Shepherd Collection which aids our retired priests. A large number of our retired priests do not have Social Security and exist only on the pension from the diocese ($1,300 per month). We have a retirement home for priests but they have to pay $500 per month out of their pension for that, leaving them with a relatively small amount of money to keep a car, medical costs, etc. This collection last year raised $204,415 to help the retired priests. One of our younger priests is undergoing extensive chemotherapy for cancer, the cost of which goes way beyond his medical coverage, and the diocese was able to help him with money from this appeal.

A drunk sat down on a subway seat next to a priest. The man's tie was stained, his face was plastered with red lipstick, and a half empty bottle of gin was sticking out of his torn coat pocket. He opened his newspaper and began reading. After a few minutes, the man turned to the priest and asked, "Say, Father, what causes arthritis?" "My son, it's caused by loose living, being with cheap, wicked women, too much alcohol and a contempt for your fellow man." "Well, I'll be damned," said the drunk who returned to reading his paper. The priest, thinking about what he had said, nudged the man and apologized. "I'm very sorry. I didn't mean to come on so strong. How long have you had arthritis?" "I don't have it, Father. I was just reading here that the pope does."

A Moment of Reflection

Reading I: Acts 2:14a, 36-41

Reading II: 1 Peter 2:20b-25

Gospel: John 10:1-10

It has been said that even in the womb babies hear sounds and voices. Once born, they learn to associate voices with faces. They learn to respond and learn that different tones and volume mean different things. The human voice is distantly individual. It is almost like a fingerprint. It expresses who we are in a most personal way. A disciple of Jesus has to learn how to listen carefully. His voice often comes in the voice of another, but listening in silence, in prayer, in reflective reading of the Scriptures are privileged ways for us to hear His voice. The other voices - those of the market and of the media present options, pursuits of riches or self-importance, following the crowd, going along with the latest fad, letting others make decisions for us - these are the voices that can lead us astray. Whose voice are you choosing to listen to these days?
